Examples of HEF Investment Projects

Community 50/50 is expanding its 3rd Sunday feeding program into a full-service health fair offering physical health screenings, mental health screenings, stress management tools, fitness assessments, nutritional counseling, and other resources.

Richmond Food Justice Alliance is facilitating an urban agriculture and skill-building program, food distribution, community events, and workshops with the goal of reducing food insecurity and increasing access to healthy food options and green spaces.

Empowering YOU for Positive Change is implementing a Mental Health Skill Building program servicing residents who lack sufficient health insurance.

Shalom Farms is offering a more consistent supply of produce and other locally produced healthy foods by increasing the number of Mobile Market days, the duration of the market distribution season, and inclusion of additional marginalized neighborhoods, thus resulting in more residents with long-term, affordable access to high quality, culturally appropriate, fresh food.

Health Brigade is enhancing their integrated primary care services by sustaining and increasing communicable disease testing, treatment, and linkage to care specifically for syphilis, HCV and TB.

St. Luke Legacy Center is filling gaps in their "The Fourth Trimester" program to provide holistic, wraparound support for new and expecting parents with children ages 0-5 that addresses the social, emotional, cognitive, physical, and behavioral aspects of infant and child development while also addressing these same needs for both parents.

Help Me Help You Foundation is hiring essential staff to provide ongoing case management, care coordination, and workshops for justice-involved Richmond residents with a history of substance use.

The Hive is onboarding Young Innovators as part-time staff members, as well as creating a transition plan for each Young Innovator through goal-setting and case management, resource referral, self-guided and HIVE-facilitated enrichment activities, and monthly life-skills workshops.

Latinos in Virginia Empowerment Center is expanding the existing Hotline Team to provide information and support more intentionally to Spanish-speaking individuals, connecting them with the services they need.

Virginia Anti-Violence Project is addressing the strong need for mental health peer to peer support and longer-term emergency services for high-risk LGBTQ+ survivors of violence.

Nationz Foundation is improving access to care for STI testing, linking clients to educational resources and care, referring clients to emergency support services, expanding outreach, and providing harm reduction services.

REAL LIFE is providing housing for residents in 9 REAL Houses, which includes support for each Lifer to create a transition plan, in-home pro-social skill building at each house, drug testing, and other support services.

WHO Counseling Services is implementing a Substance Use Disorder Treatment Program for the reentry population who lack sufficient health insurance to cover necessary SUD services.

A frequent market shopper started buying produce for her kids at a parks and rec summer camp she works at. A lot of the kids had never tried peppers or tomatoes! She was saddened by how they brought really unhealthy snacks in, and started giving them fruit and veggies from us. Kids were reluctant at first but then they tried and loved the bell peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes, squash, and fruit. They even made salsa and guacamole using our produce! The kids came for a field trip too!

If you would have asked me a year ago if I thought I would ever get clean, my answer would have been absolutely not. At that time, I was hopeless and thought that I would need to use for the rest of my life. REAL LIFE gave me the resources and the tools to achieve a better life. This program gave me structure and stability with the discipline I needed to be successful. Since beginning the program, I have acquired a job, received promotions at that job, I've become a house leader and I have a much better relationship with my family. My children are proud of me, and I am proud of me, which are two things I have not been able to say in a long time.

What's Next?

- Provide programmatic support and fund disbursement to HEF's newest partners
- Onboard new Community Advisory Committee members as resident leaders involved in selection of investments
- Initiate next grant application cycle for new and renewed funding in Spring '25
- Maintain and secure additional funding from public and private partners
