Vice Chair Stephanie Lynch asked if the number of dropped calls transferred from the call center are being tracked.

Mr. Decker stated that the city stopped transferring emergency calls to RAA and began operating the emergency medical dispatch. Mr. Decker also stated that the Department of Emergency Communications, Preparedness and Response (DECPR) monitors and provides dispatch for emergency medical calls.

Vice Chair Lynch asked how RAA would be dispatched to medical emergencies if RAA no longer takes incoming emergency medical calls.

Mr. Decker stated that the DECPR uses the same call intake system that is used by RAA.

Stephen Willoughby, Director of DECPR, stated when an emergency call is received, RAA will get the information simultaneously to dispatch emergency medical services, and DECPR collects the emergency data and information.

Vice Chair Lynch asked about the number of dropped calls from callers that were on hold for extended periods of time.

Director Willoughby stated that if a call is dropped by the caller who is on hold, the system will automatically call back that individual. Director Willoughby also stated that DECPR does have a log of dropped calls and will provide that data to the committee at a later date.

Vice Chair Lynch asked how common it is for localities to switch dispatch call centers.

Mr. Decker stated that the previous administration considered it a bad customer service practice for RAA to be added onto the emergency medical calls. Mr. Decker stated that it is time to reexamine DECPR taking over the dispatch calls from RAA to optimize the best medical services.

Chair Reva Trammell stated that emergency medical dispatch operations by DECPR needs to be reevaluated due to numerous complaints from the community. Chair Trammell also stated that DECPR does the best it can with handling the call volume for dispatch services, but every minute counts in medical emergencies.

Mr. Decker continued to discuss the 2024 RAA annual report with the committee.
