I meant to say, not only does The Camel support local music. They support local artists and breweries. Why not help a local business that supports othe local business.

The Camel is a venue that supports local music, the arts and the community. This restaurant, music venue and local watering hole should have the same perks as other bar establishments in the City of Richmond. I stand by the Camel and its decision to entertain their guests until 2:00AM with live music. I am available for comment and will continue to support this local business through this process. Thank you.

I support Richmond's local music and it's venues. The limitations of the special use permit on the Camel will hurt a local business that has been around for quite some time.

music saves lives, having to end it early giving everyone nothing else to do but drink until the bar closes only eggs on alcohol related problems.

There is no thing greater (especially some grumpy dude) than a cities art and culture. The Camel has been a musical epicenter for its existance and must be given the right to continue to be a nightlife hub.

The Camel is the best small venue within the entire city of Richmond. The Camel's popularity is a direct reflection of the passion and investment of its owner, Rand. As an active local musician, I owe a great deal of my success to this venue alone.

As a former employee of Camel, I've seen how this noise violation has impacted the venue negatively, and would hate to see this injustice be continued to an establishment that has done nothing but bring revenue and businesses to the broad st. Area

The camel is the best location in town for live music, and having played at the venue as well as having enjoyed some of my favorite bands at the venue, it's a shame that music has to be cut short, taking away from the integrity of a live show.

In my town, one of my favorite bars, owned by people I know and frequented by people I love to see shows from local and national acts and filled with art from local artists. I can't see a better model of what Richmond promotes itself as than the Camel. Please keep the music going to hours that every other bar is allowed. Thanks!

My friends have been playing at the Camel - and I've been watching - for years. This place is crucial for sustaining young musicians. And late night music? If there's one thing the world could use more of it, it's THAT.

Cheers!

When the Camel opened 5+ years ago it was an empty, open room, great for displaying art and maybe hosting some functions. It had no stage, no sound system, a bar the size of a snack bar, and generally little appeal either as a music destination nor as a serious place to eat and drink. I will spare the details, lets just jump to today. Today, because of the personal investment of its' owner, Rand Burgess and the full cooperation of the masses that have come to love the Camel, this business has become an important Richmond establishment. Today you can go in from any time 11am till 2am, 7 days a week and be offered one of the best bar menues in the city. Rand has built this kitchen form nothing by hiring a skilled kitchen staff whom he has empowered to take great pride and responsibility in the menu that they offer. Right on X. The bar has been expanded many fold by the labor of local craftsmen, this can include the stage that has become one of the most infamous in town, and the new sound booth that boasts the Camels' new, top of the line sound system that , night after night, makes bands from near and far sound their best. The Camel is an awesome display of one mans personal undertaking to build something important, with staying power. He has achieved it and is now being very much constrained and punished by out dated restriction that the city should really look at. Richmond, in this Commonwealth, spouts its ability to support business. Let's support our own. This isn't about being able to stay up late. This is about our birth right as Americans to strike out on our own and be independent. The image of the City of Richmond is on the line to everybody who is watching, and there are so many of us. To live and let live on this one, who is it hurting? Long live The Camel.

This is a great venue in an area where a 2:00AM end to music does not impact Richmond residents. This also will bring in more tax food tax money for the City.

Richmond is a city coming to life, and its utterly backwards for the laws that govern it to be working against it at every turn. For a social venue sitting just to the West of the line where the city apparently decreed that Broad St. could become a free-for-all of lifeless, plastic institutions bracketed with parking lots equal in square footage to the stores they serve, the Camel has done astoundingly well. For a nightlife spot that's had its customers cars towed before the end of the 11 O'clock news hour, it's a real trooper. Mostly, it's a gathering place. Richmond needs more of those.

A vibrant music scene is the number one sign to me that a city is alive and well. The Camel supports such a broad range of acts, and has secured a reputation as one of Richmond's best places to see live music. To stand in the way of this is just short of trying to halt progress in this developing neighborhood where, if the growing number of new businesses is any indication, livelier late nights are clearly in demand.

I have been outside the Camel while music was playing inside and have never found it too loud. I understand wanting to have limits on times for noise reasons, especially in residential areas. But this place has no problem with the music being too loud and there are not a lot of residents in this area. I would love to have a place where I can go late and not have to trudge home so early because the music ended so soon.

Because the camel is more than just a bar. It is a community of physical and musical artist and the fans that support them through thick and thin. Its a place where you hear the word family more than you hear the word friend. Its a well kept up, nice looking place filled with classy, welcoming people, with sweet souls, and large hearts. Supporters of the camel that consider themselves as part of the Camel Family will show up on random nights to either support their friends in music, or come on a random night not knowing whos playing, but expecting a quality show. Above all, Camel Family members truly enjoy the support and the

and you know what, some of us enjoy the fact that we have a safe place, filled with beautiful, open minded people every day of the week for those days where we may need a laugh, a hug, a drink, and some music late night on a weeknight.

This venue provides an important opportunity for developing artists to hone their craft. There are many developing professional musicians in Richmond coming from VCU and other universities in the area. Many of them have gone on to be famous and significant contributions to the arts in America. They need a place to play. The volume is also no louder than any bar in Richmond with a sound system playing music in the background. The music at most bars in Richmond is louder in decibels than any live music the Camel has. I challenge you to actually measure the volume of the Camel in decibels versus the volume of Bandito's and see which is louder.

I am a musician and this is probably the first real venue I ever played, back when I was 16. The Camel has given musicians from all ages, skill levels, towns, and popularity a chance to share their creative visions and performances, as well as hosted local artists' work for weeks at a time. Because of this, it serves as a community moral booster, in the guise of a bar/restaurant/venue. Having played here in many bands since that first gig, I know the importance of this place to myself and so many others, musicians and non-musicians alike. Plus they have some of the best sound and staff in Richmond, hands down!

Rand is one of the most fair, easiest to work with musical venue owners in Richmond. He has worked hard to make the Camel a go-to spot for musical acts from all over the country as well as a great watering hole where you can get a good local brew and some fairly good eats. Allowing The Camel to stay open until 2 a.m. will allow it to remain a spot where QUALITY music is played and enjoyed. Not too many of those spots in the city, really.

This is an epitome of local culture and small business. Other clubs blast music until 2am every night, with multiple apartments above them (Shockoe Bottom as my first thought), yet they stay open. Why the Camel? The Camel represents local music at it's finest, and is a hot spot for creativity in Richmond. Must we listen to pop music, or none at all? Let us live.

I have been a supporter of live music in Richmond and Ashland, attending shows in the area for over 20 years, and because Shockoe Bottom no longer has an active nightlife scene, we should allow musicians to play until an hour that is considered "normal" by most medium-to-large city standards. We need to be able to attract artists the same way Baltimore, DC, and Norfolk do...rather than regressing and losing face even to Charlottesville. 2 a.m. is not all night! We shouldn't have such a "curfew".

I am a member of a band from New Orleans who has played at the camel 3 times over the last 2 years while passing thru Richmond on tour. The Camel is one of the best venues I've played at in the southeast and on a major road surrounded by big business and even a university if I remember correctly. I cannot see any reason to cut so many shows short. As someone who works in the service industry in addition to being musician, I feel it should be common knowledge that many people don't even get off of work until 10,11 or even 12am and often long for something to do when their shift is over for their workday didn't end at 5:00pm and they're not trying to tuck themselves in for the night, fresh out work. The night is where the scene survives. The night is where it thrives. And just like the cities busy streets, The music never sleeps.

The Camel is an institution in the Richmond music and art scenes - two critical parts of the culture that give the City such vibrancy and draw. If there is any harm that results from allowing the Camel to have music until 2 A.M., it is minor and particularized to a few individuals. And a few individuals should be allowed to obstruct the growth of this city because they are inconvenienced.

The Camel is, without a doubt, one of the most important establishments in RVA. As cheesy as its sounds, the Camel is more than a bar. It's a cultural hub. An intersection of arts, food, beer, and community that tirelessly supports whoever enters its doors or plays on its stage. That being said, I don't think ANYONE at the Camel wants to make any bureaucratic waves if they don't have to. The Camel's employees and patrons want to do this right. If this petition doesn't speak at a loud enough "volume" (I know the city has a problem with that), then its only a matter of time before another one pops up, and another after that. We wont stop. Some might even say we cant. RVA ALL DAY!

To limit the time music can be played until will have a direct effect on the amount of musical tourism you receive. I'm a local musician that fully recognizes how important a place like The Camel is to support Richmond's thriving arts community. Being a musician is tough and Rand Burgess provides a venue, 7 nights a week, where musicians can perform and potentially make a decent wage. Restricting our performing hours only makes it more difficult for us and also hurts The Camel, a local Richmond business with an outstanding reputation in the community. I love Richmond and all of my fellow musicians, as well as The Camel staff. Please lift the restrictions on The Camel and let's keep a good thing going for the greater good of the culture in our great state of Virginia, why would we restrict a staple such as The Camel that strives so hard to contribute in ways that most cannot understand to a the culture that makes Richmond what it is?

There are a lot of establishments in Richmond that are contemptuous of the people around them, but I don't believe the Camel is one of them. Bars next door to residences in the Fan play music until 2:00 am at a far louder volume than the Camel, and they do it simply because that compels people to buy more beer. No more creative effort is put into their experience than the bartender thumbing the play button on his MP3 player.

The Camel is one of the few places left providing a critical venue for musicians to hone their skills and share what they create. The Camel, and the musicians that contribute to it, is a place that Richmond can be proud of.

Because there are not enough music venues that go past 12 around the fan, and we don't want to drink and drive across town when we can walk or ride a bike to this venue.

Besides, it is in a business district and I think one person lives in a ware house next door who keeps complaining. He knew where he was moving to and should expect this with being on Broad street.

The Camel is bringing money and life in to an otherwise dead area of Broad Street. The crowd is composed of decent people that mix well and don't cause trouble. We all just love good live music and an awesome beer selection. Doesn't hurt that the food is great too. The Camel is one of the only places in the entire city that keeps the music scene alive. The Camel is an amazing establishment with great food, excellent service, and all kinds of wonderful and different shows on a nightly basis. For people that work night shifts and hardly ever get out, The Camel is a dependable place to go because there is always something going on and its always a great time. It is very important to keep the music going as long as possible for The Camel to keep its niche within the community as a nonstop source of entertainment and good company. I feel that it's truly a shame that The Camel has had to deal with so much because of 1 bad neighbor, since there are hundreds of loyal patrons that disagree with him. I think after a very long period of Richmond being stagnant and docile, The art and music scene is finally started to blossom throughout the city and its amazing. It breaks my heart to hear that one individual has the power to bring that to a halt, in one area at least, because he has some personal vendetta against something or someone.

As a graduate of VCU's school of music, an entertainment professional in the Washington DC area, with a child at VCU, and people who routinely ask me about where to send their kids to study entertainment related fields I think a healthy live music scene is vital to an urban area. I look upon my years in Richmond with great fondness 79 - 84, anything that can help the live music scene should be supported.

I didn't tattoo this bar's stamp on my body for nothing. The Camel is one of the best venues in the city, hands down. Live music every night of the year, and incredible staff, and one of the most motivated business-owners in this city. Rand and The Camel love Richmond - Richmond should love them back. Shutting it down early puts a limit on this local business and a bumner on the community that just wants to hear some good music, drink some good beers, and dance until 2.

This is one of the few hardcore music sites in Richmond. Traditionally, developing music acts play later at night so that their music can reach more people. That being said, it seems Un-American and VERY UN-RVA to prohibit a business that caters to this from doing the best they can to promote music in the community.

Early curfews stunt venue growth to its core. An extra hour or two curfew makes all the difference to a venue's longevity.

Seriously, if this town is trying to be a real city, we need to support our local music venues. There's already a shortage of good venues, & the Camel has spearheaded taking a step in the right direction. Don't screw the pooch on this one people.

I lived in Richmond a couple years ago, and I would have loved to stay at the camel later into the night listening to great music. They always choose excellent bands to play there and it would bring a lot of life to the community to allow the music to go longer.

i have been attending shows at the camel since i was 18 years old. i longed for the day that i could stay for the whole show and not have to leave at midnight. i came to find that the last hours of the show are always the best. why should they take away the right for bands to make music and allow the night owls to enjoy it? its just wrong. let the music play.

Providing entertainment options at later hours keeps the city in step with the rest of the modern world. Having moved from Milwaukee, I am learning about so many old-fashioned (sic. outdated) laws that please mostly those who only wish to see the status quo upheld while not really being affected.

Mr. Burgess has created a nice venue that has provided good food and music to our West Grace Street neighborhood. Also, I think the requirements under the current SUP are discriminatory and burdensome for this commercial location and have not been applied to neighboring businesses of like kind.

SUPPORTING LOCAL BUSINESSES should be a PRIORITY!!!!

REPORT THIS COMMENT:

This comment is

In 2006, the previous owners of The Camel and, WRIR filed for a special use permit because zoning laws at the time did not permit a radio station. The special use permit that was approved also placed limitations on entertainment at The Camel. Those limitations stipulated that "entertainment must end by 11pm Sunday through Thursday, and by 1am Friday and Saturday". The Camel never would have been subjected to these limitations had the business kept its original Urban Business Zoning. Instead, because of the special use permit issued principally to allow for the establishment of the radio station (which shares an address with the venue), these restrictions were applied to The Camel as well.

We are now, almost 8 years since the original special use permit was approved, looking to amend our special use permit so as to allow for music to go until 2am. The Camel hosts music of all genres, from bluegrass, jazz, rock, indie and folk, to punk and electronica, seven nights a week. We have hosted local, regional, and national acts such as Awolnation, Young The Giant, Ben Kweller, No Bs Brass, The Green Boys, Jackass Flats, Frank Turner, Tim Barry, and Justin Townes Earle, and are proud of the support and notoriety we have been able to provide to the local music and arts community. The limitations enumerated under the current special use permit have become prohibitive of our ability to best serve the needs of the community that supports us. A change is necessary if we are to continue providing a platform for local and national acts to share our stage and their creativity with the rich musical culture Richmond has grown to embody.

In the meantime we are complying with our special use permit and appreciate everyone's support in helping us amend this.

RVA ALL DAY!
