Citizen Comment

CD.2022.303 September 12, 2022 Citizen Comment Period Speakers List

Ann Wortham addressed Council and stated that her neighborhood was in rampant disorder. Ms. Wortham provided examples of the disorder, and she also stated that she believed that drug use was a major cause of the disorder. Ms. Wortham requested that the city address the issue.

President Cynthia Newbille thanked Ms. Wortham for informing Council of her concerns and she stated that the city was reviewing the issues she raised.

Chief Administrative Officer Lincoln Saunders informed Council that the city's code enforcement team was actively addressing code enforcement throughout the city, and he stated that the city was taking a multi-departmental approach to the enforcement.

Glen Besa, Sierra Club Falls of the James Group volunteer, addressed Council and stated his appreciation for Council adopting RES. 2021-R049, which declared the existence of a climate and ecological emergency in the city. Mr. Besa acknowledged some of the actions taken by the city because of the declaration, and he informed Council of other available actions the city could take in the future regarding the emergency.

Lee Williams, Green New Deal Virginia director, Sierra Club Falls of the James Group advocacy chair, addressed Council and acknowledged that it was the one-year anniversary of Council adopting RES. 2021-R049, which declared the existence of a climate and ecological emergency in the city. Ms. Williams also addressed actions Council could take in the future to address the emergency.

A copy of the material provided has been filed.

Councilor Katherine Jordan stated her appreciation for the comments related to the climate emergency and she stated she looked forward to how the city would address the issue in the future.

Khalah Sabackhan addressed Council and informed members of an incident she witnessed involving an individual without housing and two Richmond Police officers. Ms. Sabackhan stated that she did not believe the two officers acted properly when interacting with the individual. Ms. Sabackhan also stated that she was targeted and harassed for addressing her concerns with the officers.

Councilor Ann-Frances Lambert stated her appreciation for Ms. Sabackhan's comments, and she stated that the city needed to examine how to re-imagine the relationship between citizens and police.

Vice President Ellen Robertson stated that her office would contact Ms. Sabackhan to provide assistance regarding her comments.

Edwuan Whitehead, Richmond Transparency Accountability Project (RTAP) member, addressed Council and asked that members approve the creation of a meaningful and impactful civilian review board related to the Richmond Police Department. Mr. Whitehead provided Council with statistical data regarding police interactions with the city's Black population. Mr. Whitehead stated that civilian oversight would help address police brutality related to the city's Black population.

It was the consensus of Council to permit an individual to address Council during the Citizen Comment Period that had not registered with the Office of the City Clerk prior to the meeting.

Reid Carter addressed Council and stated his concerns regarding the city's recent assessment of his home. Mr. Carter also stated that he believed the city's real estate tax rate should be adjusted to prevent a significant increase in taxes paid by citizens, especially citizens living on a fixed income. Mr. Carter further stated that the tax rate should incorporate the higher assessments and the city's budget to determine a fair rate.

Councilwoman Reva Trammell stated her appreciation for Mr. Carter's comments, and she informed members that she and Councilor Kristen Nye were co-patrons to an ordinance scheduled to be introduced that evening, that would lower the city's current real estate tax rate.

Councilor Andreas Addison stated that rising real estate assessments was a major issue for the city, and that the city needed to review possible methods to assist residents in the city prior to budget deliberations for the next fiscal year.

Councilor Katherine Jordan stated that the city should examine tools to assist long-term city residents with the rise in assessments.

Chief Administrative Officer Saunders stated that the city would review methods available to provide assistance to city residents and address rising assessments.

Councilor Stephanie Lynch requested that documentation be included with real estate assessment notices that would inform residents of factors that determine real estate assessments. Councilor Lynch stated city government should request that the Virginia General Assembly provide local governments with the tools necessary to assist residents with rising assessments.

Agenda Review and Amendments
