Other community involvement:

- 2015
  - Organized the National Association for Community Design Conference, Neighbors, in downtown Richmond, which brought 100 designers from around the country to downtown Richmond.
- 2013
  - In partnership with Planning & Development Review, I organized the Broad Street Block Blitz to introduce the Arts & Cultural District to the Façade Improvement Program. This weekend brought 70 volunteers together to make minor improvements to façades along the 300 block of East Broad Street.
- 2012
  - Received funding from VCUarts to establish an inventory of vacant historic structures on East Broad and East Grace Streets. This inventory resulted in a book that created a narrative for 40 structures (sample attached), as well as an exhibit.
- 2011
  - As a volunteer at Storefront for Community Design, I worked to change the guidelines to accommodate murals on non-contributing buildings in City Old & Historic Districts.

OPTIONAL

Please list additional information you would like considered, or you may attach your resume or other information.

NTHNG MSSNG CATALOG

If through images or through lore, the act of recollection steadies the pulse of Richmond, Virginia's dormant downtown. While its buildings serve as evidence of a commercial past, they simultaneously become products within the market of urban redevelopment. Somewhere in-between the economic task of cities to identify latent potential, and the creative process of imagining their past, research methods often neglect the current state of vacant buildings, estranging them from the present.

Begun in 2011 with a grant from the Dean of Virginia Commonwealth University's School of the Arts, this project explored the life of forty buildings, the imaginative processes of envisioning their relationship to the past and future, and the sublime experience of exploring their present state. Collectively, these vacant buildings took on the role of curated works within the confines of their ten-block scope along Richmond's iconic commercial thoroughfares, East Broad Street and East Grace Street, and were documented with a custom architectural survey, the results of which are now published online at therehere.org.

In addition to collecting this data, extensive exploration revealed that long-vacant buildings will eagerly share their story. Taking cues from found text inscribed on artifacts and signage, the buildings themselves seemed to offer themes of "missing," "repairing," and "returning" as an autobiographical account of their redevelopment, as well as the contested process of gentrification they currently undergo.

As preservation practices and state administered documentation methods rely too heavily on economic prosperity as criteria for historic significance, NTHNG MSSNG sheds light on a neighborhood that—while it is not assuming its intended commercial role—has alternatively functioned as a place to house a city's imagination. The project's catalog featured in this exhibition, NTHNG MSSNG, was written with a fifty-year perspective in mind. What is available to you when you research a neighborhood's history? What would you like to see? To answer these questions, NTHNG MSSNG provides a new "then" for the future "now" of Richmond's downtown.

Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority

Vacancy Chart

as of February 8, 2016

Section 5.05(d) of the Charter of the City of Richmond (2006) expressly provides that “the appointment of members of a redevelopment and housing authority in the city shall be made by the council.” Section 36-11 of the Code of Virginia (1950) authorizes the Council to provide for not more than nine or less than five commissioners of the Authority. By Resolution No. 99-R46-80, adopted March 22, 1999, the Council increased the number of commissioners from five to seven as authorized by section 36-11 of the Code of Virginia (1950). As amended by Resolution No. 2010-R140-162, adopted October 25, 2010, the Council increased the number of commissioners from seven to nine. An additional Council-appointed seat and an additional tenant representative seat.

Pursuant to section 36-11 of the Code of Virginia (1950), no commissioner of the Authority may be an officer or employee of the City. By Resolution No. 2003-R230-2004-R18, adopted January 12, 2004, the Council established a procedure to be followed for appointing one member living in public or assisted housing to serve on the Authority’s Board of Commissioners as required by the regulations of the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development. As amended by Resolution No. 2010-R141-173, adopted November 8, 2010, revising the process for the appointment of the tenant representatives to the Board of Commissioners of the Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority.
