RE: Updated History and Culture Commission

ORD. OR RES. No. _____

PURPOSE: To update certain provisions of the City of Richmond's History and Culture Commission.

REASON: To ensure the City's History and Culture Commission has clear duties, an updated appointment process, and budget.

RECOMMENDATION: Approval is recommended by the City Administration.

BACKGROUND: The City of Richmond has embarked on critical projects to determine how to most effectively tell a more holistic story around the city's rich, deep, and even contentious historic sites and landmarks. To help understand and tell Richmond's history, Mayor Stoney established the first ever History and Culture Commission for the City of Richmond in 2018. However, the current Commission's mission and structure need updating to ensure it is an effective and high-functioning body.

The following items are recommended as necessary updates to Ordinance No. 2018-269:

- The History and Culture Commission will advise the Mayor, Department of Planning and Development Review, AND City Council on matters involving the history and culture of the City of Richmond;
- The estimated operating costs for the Commission will be approximately $200,000, including a new, full-time staffer.

- The Department of Planning and Development Review will hire a new full-time staffer, with expertise in public history and culture, to manage the updated Commission.
 - The new staff member shall coordinate Commission efforts across various city departments and offices, including, but not limited to Planning and Development Review, Public Works, and Office of Equitable Development.
- The Commission shall be composed of 9 members (instead of 13)
 - Of the 9 members, five will be appointed by the mayor and four shall be appointed by City Council.
 - The composition of the Commission shall reflect the diversity of the City of Richmond and represent a range of specific expertise and skillsets in one or more fields, including, but not limited to, architecture, archeology, history, art, culture, and economic development.
 - The City Council and Mayor's Office shall coordinate an appointment and interview process to ensure the Commission's members are appropriately appointed.
 - Terms of office: Standard
- Duties: (1) Provide the Mayor, City Council, the Department of Planning and Development Review, and the public with information and recommendations regarding the preservation of or interpretive signage for any areas, structures, sites, and objects that are significant elements of the cultural, social, economic, political, or architectural history of the City of Richmond. (2) Establish a formal historical marker program and design the marker itself (following state guidance), in collaboration with the Department of Planning and Development Review, Public Arts Commission, and the Department of Public Works. The program shall include a formal historical marker application and procedures for nominating a historical marker. All information about historical markers and the associated process shall be publicly available on RVA.gov and include a regularly updated list of all historic markers in the City of Richmond. (3) Facilitate public awareness and education of the City of Richmond's history, culture, and undertakings involving historic or cultural sites by hosting an annual history event, such as a conference, walking tour, or panel discussion. (4) Prepare a report listing a full inventory of street, bridge, or public space names associated with the Confederacy or enslavers and outline a process, working with the City Administration and City Attorney, for the renaming of such locations.
- Voting: A majority vote of the Commission is required to approve historic markers and public asset renaming.
- Quorum: Five members shall constitute a quorum.
- Officers: The Commission shall select from among voting members a chair, vice chair, and such other officers as it may deem necessary to discharge its functions.
- Meetings: The Commission shall meet monthly and as often as the Commission may deem necessary.
- Reporting: In October of each year, the Commission shall provide the Mayor, City Council, and the Director of Planning and Development Review with a report on the Commission's activities and accomplishments for the year.
