Priority Neighborhoods

Priority Neighborhoods are the primary focus of investment for the City of Richmond and the Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority. Priority Neighborhoods consist of public housing and land owned or recently transferred by RRHA that play an integral role in communities across the city.

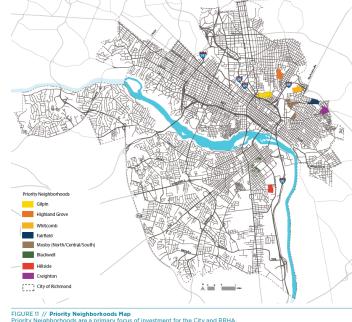

Priority Neighborhoods are located within some of today's most established and distinguished Richmond communities and adiacent to many of the city's most renown institutions and landmarks. Priority Neighborhoods, many of which date back to the 1950s, are home to multiple-generation residents whose families have signficantly contributed to Richmond's culture and institutions. While Priority Neighborhoods carry significant stories and lessons of Richmond's past, including the painful legacy of racial discrimination, they also hold the promise of the city's transformational future.

The redevelopment of Priority Neighborhoods is an opportunity to redesign the city around the needs, assets, and aspirations of valuable yet historically overlooked communities. By redeveloping Priority Neighborhoods, the City and RRHA will leverage their collective resources and partnerships to provide quality infrastructure, affordable housing, human services, and economic development opportunity for all Richmonders, especially those living in or seeking public housing. Through community-oriented planning and strategic City investment in infrastructure, priority neighborhoods will become high-quality, wellconnected, and equitable mixed-use developments that catalyze the Richmond300 vision throughout the city.

Background

Current Conditions

Priority Neighborhood Gilpin Court

Background

Gilpin Court was the first of RRHA's public housing ents and was constructed in three phases beginning in 1942 and ending in 1971. The s aided by a 1942 slum clearance project which den clished hundreds of homes and displaced much of the neighborhood's majority Black and immigrant population. The development was named after Charles Gilpin, one of the most famous and early Black stage actors in the country and a Richmond local.

Gilpin is located in Jackson Ward, once the epicenter of Richmond's African-American community. In the 1920s and 1940s, Jackson Ward was known as both the "Harlem of the South" and the "Black Wall Street" due to its emergence as both a place for entertainment and a hub of economic opportunities for Black Richmonders.

In 1957, the construction of the Richmond-Petersburg Turnpike (I-95/I-64) bisected Jackson Ward, leaving Gilpin Court isolated from the rest of the neighborhood and the city. Due to discriminatory planning decisions, structural disinvestment, segregation, and concentrated poverty, the neighborhood struggled and many of its cultural landmarks were destroyed.

Today, Gilpin Court is the most populated public ousing development in Richmond with nearly 2475 residents. The poverty rate is nearly 3.5 times that of the city at 80% and the violent crime rate is 2.4 times the city ate. The majority of Gilpin households have an annual icome of less than $10,000.

Gilpin is surrounded by rich community resources and Richmond landmarks including: the Calhoun Community Center, historic Shockoe Hill Cemetery and African Burving Ground, Abner Clay Park. the Black History Museum and Cultural Center of Virginia, Hippodrome Theater, Maggie L. Walker Plaza and Statue, and Sixth Mount Zion Baptist Church
